

Course Announcement (Spring 2008)

COMP 7370: Advanced Computer and Network Security

Why take this course?

1. Want to find an industry job?

Position	Security and Privacy (Posted on 11/30/2007)
Location	Hawthorne, NY
Company	IBM
Part of the Job Description	Security , computer, cryptography , systems, Web, management, software, analysis, modeling, Linux, embedded, embedded systems, research, project, development, middleware, IBM, scientific, applications, IT.

Position	Firmware Developer (Posted on 11/29/2007)
Location	Folsom, CA
Company	Intel Corporation
Part of the Job Description	Knowledge in the area of PC architecture, Basic Input Output System (BIOS), data security techniques , networking and/or enterprise manageability would be an added advantage

Position	Software Development Engineer (Posted on 11/30/2007)
Location	Redmond, WA
Company	Microsoft
Part of the Job Description	We are innovating on top of our success to increase the security profile of Microsoft online service by enabling features such as Secure Email/Secure IM , and to strengthen our relationship with end users through features like delegation, persona, rich user profile.

2. Want to go to a graduate school?

Professor X's requirements for Prospective Research Students:

Thank you for your interest in my research. To work in my research area, the following background is desirable. You should have a basic computer science background including OS, architecture, and algorithms. In addition, the following are areas/tools/techniques that we are likely to use: computer security and privacy.

3. For more information, check webpage

<http://www.eng.auburn.edu/~xqin/courses/comp7370>